Any new or seasoned homeschooler should have this book in their library, or now delightfully on their e-reader. For those new to schooling at home this can serve as a manual of sorts, for seasoned ones it can serve as comfort, reassurance, or even as a tool to aid others along their paths. In this qualitative study homeschooling educational methods are explored; including how they are implemented, who uses which method, and why each family chose the method they are currently using. This book is not only a research report, it has become a handbook to those considering homeschooling, and considering which homeschooling method might be the right fit for their family. It contains websites as well as pages of reference material for each type of method.
