Alcohol and envy are a deadly mix. The second novel of the Pepper Bibeau Mystery series, set in eastern Wisconsin, unfolds in an atmosphere of alcohol and drugs not uncommon the year Janis Joplin died.

Treacherous waves on Lake Michigan toss Insurance Investigator Pepper Bibeau into the company of an intriguing and self-reliant blind lady. Haunted by past events, this lady presents Pepper with an unusual request to help clear up a murder. In an attempt to link those past events to an investigation on her cousin's life insurance claim, Pepper uncovers a family history that, until now, she never even suspected.

Pepper's son resides in Hawaii but his father, Homicide Sergeant Rick Janus, lives right next door. He wants to resume a relationship that faded ten years ago. A week-end fishing trip sounded good, until more dead bodies cancelled their plans.

Well-intended deeds often lead to unwise choices, even for those sworn to uphold the law. Because of her mixed heritage, Pepper dealt with prejudice most of her twenty-eight years and always managed to keep her hackles lowered around bigoted people. Until now. A situation left to simmer for too long builds to a confrontation that will not allow her to walk away without a solution. In the end, not everyone will walk away.

DEADLY AS NATURE, the second Pepper Bibeau Mystery, is available on Amazon in print and e-Book format, along with FOR EVERY ACTION and WITH FIERY VENGEANCE.
